Students View Solar Car

MILLBURY - On Friday, October 4th, students of Joan Julian's Appiied Science Class at Millbury High School were able to view, first hand, a solar powered car. The students had just completed a unit on Solar Energy and the Reflection of Solar Energy as part of the weather portion of the course. The students were exploring the feasibility of solar use for heating homes, hot water, and as a substitute for fossil fuels in cars.

The Solar Car, a 1957 BMW, was purchased for $10.00 in 1963 by Jim Adams, an instructor of Automotive Technology at the New England School of Technology. The car, which is run by electricity, can be recharged by either the sun or by simply plugging it into a standard wall socket. Running at the cost of about 2 cents per mile, the car can go up to 70 miles at about 60 m.p.h. on a full charge.

Although a car like this may seem novel to many, in Europe, where the price of gas can reach up to $6.00 a gallon, the use of these cars is becoming more frequent every day. According to Adams, the solar powered car is the car of the future for the United States as well.

Julian's Applied Science classes need speakers on science careers and in Meteorology, Botany, Ecology, and other science and social issues. She can be reached at 865-5841.

A Silver Bullet May Be Coming to Your House

By Andree A. Belisle

MILLBURY - So you enjoy NESN, the Movie Channel, HBO, Cinemax, the Disney Channel at your house - and you say you don't pay for them? Edward Goldstein, Community Affairs Director for Greater Media Cable, and Paul DiCicco, chairman of Millbury's Cable TV Advisory Committee, have a message for you: it's a crime, a crime that results in a billion dollar loss for the cable industry nationwide, and a crime that is punishable by up to $3,000 in fines, aside from restitution, and/or three years in prison.

"Here's a faltering American economy," Goldstein said, "and you are talking billions. You're talking contraband goods; you're talking heavy activity here, not some minor kind of a thing. Our company conservatively estimates, in our service area here, all 21 communities, that we are losing well over a million dollars a year."

Goldstein said part of the problem is that the general public does not view cable theft as a crime. "It's widespread; it's a non-violent crime, so that we don't often think of it as crime. It's an activity that crosses all demographic and social lines. It touches everyone, everywhere," he said.

Goldstein generously offered that some homeowners may not even realize they are doing something wrong, and attributed their actions to ignorance. "They move into a property, and they see from the previous occupant that there's an outlet, maybe even with cable strung around. So they plug in their cable-ready sets and start using it, and it doesn't dawn on them that they're supposed to be buying this from some company. Now we believe some people when they tell us this," he said, "but the fact is, you wouldn't do that with your electricity; you would have to open an account."

DiCicco asked Goldstein why the cable companies do not shut off the service to avoid this problem.

"We've made it easier (to steal the service)" Goldstein acknowledged. "That doesn't mean it's not a crime. They don't have to subscribe, but don't touch it."

There are other ways by which the homeowner can receive signals illegally, including illicit boards, decoders, and boxes. By putting in a decoder, the scrambler is defeated and people can pick up all the pay channels and all the pay per view.

Goldstein said there are even individuals who will string their own cable. "People go out at night and string it from their property to the nearest pole and tap themselves into our components. They splice themselves into our lines."

Goldstein said the "worst scenario" involves the purchase of a "hot box." Anyone can buy cable converter boxes either through electronics magazines or in retail outlets. "The anomaly of the law," Goldstein explained, "is, it's legal to advertise and sell it, and it's legal to buy it. It becomes illegal when you hook it up and use it without paying for the service. You can buy a "hot box" off the back of someone's truck, and these are either stolen from legitimate cable companies and recycled or manufactured in illicit factories for the sole purpose of going into criminal hands to be distributed illegally. Once you get into the decoder and hot box distribution, you're talking criminal activity."

OCST, a trade group in the cable industry, reported that in the last two years, 125,000 illegal devices were seized. The 1990 nationwide loss amounted to $3 billion. Goldstein said a "council person" in one of the communities serviced by Greater Media observed hot boxes being sold out of the back of a truck on the main street in town. In addition, "There was a case in Rhode Island of postal employees doing it out of the parking lot of the post office. It's just like drugs with a distribution system and serious overseas connections," he said.

Goldstein acknowledged that public sympathy does not weigh heavily on the side of the cable companies. "A lot of people

From My Window on Farnsworth Court

By "Pastor Rae" Cameron

Well, it won't be a very long column this week as my strength is pretty well used up from chemotherapy and many more things that are going along with my battle with the Big C. It just seems that one thing leads to another, and I won't bore you with details. If you greet me on the street and I'm not my usual cheery self, please forgive.

I want to thank so many of you for your prayers and support. Especially the Millbury Baptist Church who is keeping this old sick pastor on as long as possible. I can't do all that I'd like to do, but I'll do my best.

Thank you for the many business cards that you have already sent in. A big bundle came from a local business, and then individuals sent some to me personally and some here to the library.

This Halloween celebration reminds us that there is a spiritual world beyond our own. Angels are real; as are devils too, but those who trust in Jesus are assured that the angels do always watch over them. God bless you all. Amen....

Millbury Schools Need Volunteers

MILLBURY - The Millbury School Connection is in full swing again this year. Volunteers are spending many hours helping the schools. You do not have to have a child in the school system to volunteer - just a desire to help. Following are some of the volunteer opportunities available:

1. Work one-on-one in the Guidance Office with High School Juniors on the computer, using a career planning program. The program is not difficult, and training is available. If you are a little timid when it comes to computers, this would give you the chance to see how easy they are to run and how much fun they can be. You will also be helping a student narrow down his/her career choices. Weekly, any time during school hours.

2. Work in the school Business Office updating addresses and dates of birth of students. Quiet, desk work. Any day, any time between 8 and 4.

3. Work in the Shaw or Elmwood Street school libraries filing books, typing on computers, checking out books, repairing books, shelving books, and more. Any day, any time during school day.

If interested, leave a message at the Elmwood Street School (865-5241) and Leslie Vigneau, the Volunteer Coordinator, will get back to you. You will be glad you did!

Pack 109 Halloween Parade

MILLBURY - Cub Scout Pack 109 will participate in a Halloween Parade on Wednesday, October 25, at 6:30 p.m. The pack will meet at the Scout Hall in the Federated Church at 6:45. The scouts and their families will be parading through the center of town in their costumes. For a real treat, come out and see the fun. After Main Street, the group will go through Providence House then back to the church for ghostly refreshments.

Car Wash to Benefit MHS Band

MILLBURY - The Millbury High School band will hold a car wash at the VFW on South Main Street from 8-2 p.m. on Saturday, October 19. The cost will be $3.00 for cars and $5.00 for vans. Money raised will go toward the band's trip to Virginia Beach.

Halloween Activities at Library

MILLBURY - The Millbury Public Library celebrates Halloween each year with an array of programs suited for young goblins. On Wednesday, October 23, from 1:30 to 4:30, children of all ages are invited to the library for its annual Pumpkin Decorating Workshop. Each child gets a pint-sized pumpkin and lots of "this and that" for decorating the pumpkin. Registration starts on October 15. Pumpkins donated by the Friends of the Library.

The following Wednesday, October 30 at 3:30, the library will hold its annual Halloween Parade. Stroll the streets of Millbury in costume to the Providence House Nursing Home to visit the good folks there. All ages invited.

Lastly, it is the library's Great Pumpkin Contest. Guess the weight of the Great Pumpkin and you may win it for your front porch on Halloween Night. This year's pumpkin was donated by the Dahlstrom Family. The Great Pumpkin Contest starts on October 22.

Another Point of View

They're Only Human.....but That's not Good Enough

By Lawrence Moore

More and more of us who follow seriously the goings-on of our National Legislature and its incumbents, are becoming more and more disturbed about what we see and hear, and about what we don't see and hear....but suspect. We learned long ago that where there's smoke, there's fire...and we're scared.

As events unfold, there's more talk about limited terms. The incumbents hear it too, and react. Joe Early becomes more visible, but still has never sponsored a bill that became law. Joe Biden pontificates from his pulpit in garbled, diffuse, incomplete sentences replete with non-sequiturs. Kennedy refrains from sexual harassment discussions for obvious reasons. An hour spent watching CSpan turns one's stomach.

Underlying all of this is a basic lack of ethics and morality. We used to hear talk in Nixon's time about the Imperial Presidency. What's evolving today is a realization that we have an Imperial Congress.

It isn't new. It's been going on for a long time, but now the media, which we frequently castigate, in seeking "news," finds that the conduct of our Congress is great news. On October 10, the Wall Street Journal devoted almost three pages to the Clarence Thomas show in Congress. A Washington Post Editor once said, "When you were accused it was news, but it wasn't true; now that you're cleared, it's true but it isn't news." Biden, whose cheating ways forced him from a Presidential race, sits in judgement as if he (and the House) is beyond reproach. In 1988 Representative, Jim Bates of California was accused of "touching" and lewd behavior with members of his staff, in full view of his staff. The House

Millbury Selectmen's Meeting Digest

Committee Tells Board They may Have to Lead Parade

By Edward J. Cooney

MILLBURY - Vice Chairman Donald Gauthier opened the October 8 Selectmen's Meeting shortly after 7:00 P.M. in the absence of Chairman Jude Cristo, who arrived later in the meeting.

Administrative Assistant Earl Chase reported that Mass. Electric Co. has agreed to grandfather the town for the street light conversion fee. The original fee of $50 per street light under the street light conversion program had been increased to $80 per light. At last week's meeting, Chase said he appealed to the DPU and Mass. Electric to stay with the original fee as stated when the town signed the agreement with Mass. Electric.

Interviews for Police Chief

The Board discussed the upcoming interviews of the three top candidates for Police Chief, based on the Civil Service exam: Officer Richard Handfield with a score of 83, Sgt. Lincoln Barton, 81; and Sgt. Stephen Webb, 76. Chase said he is waiting for information from the Personnel and Administration Commission that could assist the Selectmen in making their decision. He said some areas the Board should consider are: previous job performance, any awards or citations, initiative on the job, courses taken, more particular on the job display of initiative and organizational skill on projects, leadership qualities, and ability to get along with people.

With respect to the salary schedule, Chase said he was told that would be up to local officials and the person selected through negotiations. The base pay of $40,040 was the base minimum sent to the State as part of their request for the Civil Service Test announcement.

Selectman Roland Lachance asked for some clarification on the format the Board will use in interviewing each candidate. "Should we adopt a format, or can we shoot from the hip," he asked.

"It's your call," Chase replied. "I would think you would allow the candidates to make an opening presentation."

Lachance said there should be some kind of format for the line of questioning and the type of responses expected from each candidate.

Selectman Bernard Plante suggested that each Board member ask whatever questions they want .

Gauthier said the same questions should be asked of each candidate.

"I hope it doesn't get into personal politics," Lachance said.

All board members agreed that politics would not be a factor.

Acting Police Chief Ron Stokowski reminded the board that the time has not lapsed for the 17 day appeal process. Any candidate can appeal his grade on the exam which could delay certification of the marks.

Lachance said that things could change if there is an appeal. "I want to know who is going to be first, second, and third," he said. The board only has an unofficial list.

"If any one of them appealed," Gauthier said, "it could change, and we could be interviewing another candidate."

Lachance made a motion to hold up the interviews, pending the arrival of a certified list. There was no second to his motion. The interviews will take place as scheduled.

Fiscal Responsibility Committee

A meeting was held with newly appointed members of the Fiscal Responsibility Committee. The committee is charged with reviewing the existing services being provided by each Department in relation to cost, and developing a policy that could be applied to the budget appropriation. Consideration will also be given to staffing levels, length of the work day, and the number of work days per work week.

Cristo said the committee should look at the community as a whole and see if services can be consolidated or eliminated. He suggested that the committee look at broader questions and not act as another finance committee. He also noted the expectation was that a one or two page report would be forthcoming around February so preparations might be made to implement some recommendations for the next fiscal year.

Committee member Chet Hanratty suggested that some may be considered for implementation for this fiscal year.

The town will be negotiating with all unions this year.

Committee member Roger Picard, who is also Town Auditor, noted that this will be a tough year, and said the decisions the committee makes may not be very popular. "When we propose them to you, will we get your broad support?" he asked.

Cristo replied that the Board will have to bite the bullet too.

Picard said it would not be reasonable to put all the time in and then find out things are not going to work out. "You're politicians. You will make enemies too. No matter how you look at it, people will get hurt. We need your support," he said.

Cristo said if the case can be proven and the dollars are not there, cuts will have to be made and policies looked at, otherwise the town is looking at wholesale layoffs. "We are looking to you to look at things we haven't been able to do. Your expertise is there as well as your experience," he said.

"You may have to lead the parade," Hanratty said. He indicated that he was referring to the possible implementation of some recommendations in January of this fiscal year.

Lachance jokingly told Hanratty, who is the chairman of the School Committee, that the School Department is the biggest spender.

Beer and Wine License

The Board continued a public hearing that was deferred last week to allow Paula Gidopoulos to meet with representatives of the Baptist Church to discuss the church's opposition to her application for a beer and wine license for the Millbury House of Pizza at 110 Elm Street. The Moderator of the Church Board of Directors said the stand was against alcohol and not in opposition to the establishment per se.

The Board approved the beer and wine license on a 3-2 vote with Lachance and Plante opposed. Lachance said he was opposed because the establishment was wide open and a minor could very easily be seated at one of the nine tables with someone who happens to be drinking and not of the same party.

Attorney Robert Cotton, representing the applicant, said the adults working there would have ample view from the counter to see all nine tables.

Two conditions were placed on the license: no pitchers on the tables, and beer and wine must be sold only to those patrons ordering food.

Cristo suggested that the employees sit down with the Police Chief to discuss pertinent laws relating to serving liquor.

Miscellaneous

- A hearing will be held on November 26 for any liquor store owners who want to apply for Sunday openings prior to Christmas.

- The Board has a packet of information from the Tax Collector concerning the Teacher Deferral Compensation. Legislation is being proposed to defer repayment in the budget process for 13 yrs.

- The Board approved Chase's request to distribute a memo to department heads with respect to leaving vacancies unfilled. He said a draft was sent to Department heads previously with no objections.

- The Emergency 911 committee will be meeting with a New England Telephone representative to review issues relating to procedures and use of a master list of addresses for residents. Lachance noted that a problem exists with the correct numbering of houses in certain areas of town.

- No action was taken on a request for a street opening at 5 Broadmeadow Ave. as there was no additional information on the status of a drainlayer's license being acquired by the contractor who is supposed to be doing work on a surface drain at that location.

- Plante asked if an arrangement has been found to assist the Council On Aging with clerical help. Chase said the Veterans Agent's secretary has been working 9-1 two days per week in the Council office and the secretary for the Conservation Commission has also been giving some hours.

- Lachance asked Chase to follow up again on his request that a letter be written to Steelcraft on West Main St. asking them to clean off the graffiti at the old fire station and clean up the weeds and property along Burbank Street.

- The Board approved a request from the School Department for the use of Town Labor Counsel for an arbitration hearing in Boston on a grievance filed by the Millbury Teachers Association over health insurance deductions.

- A letter was received from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission asking the Board, as the Local Licensing Authority, to conduct an investigation into an alleged violation of Chapter 138, Section 69, by Licensee Neal and Andrew P. Donovan, d/b/a/ Belfont House, 11 South Main Street, relating to the sale or delivery of alcoholic beverages to an intoxicated person. "An allegation has been made that intoxicated persons are being served at the licensed premises listed above," the letter states. The letter notes that this report is not evidence of either the truth or falsity of the accusation. The matter has been referred to the Police Department.

At 8:40 p.m., the Board voted to go into executive session.

Turkey Supper

SUTTON - The 59th Annual Turkey Supper will be held at the First Congregational Church on Saturday, November 2, with sittings at 4:30, 6:00, and 7:30 p.m. This family style turkey supper is by ticket only, which can be purchased at the church office on Boston Road. Tickets are $6.00 for adults, $3.00 for preteens, and a free ticket for children 5 and under.

Flu Clinic in Millbury

MILLBURY - A Flu Clinic will be held Wednesday, November 6th, from 9:00 to 10:30 a.m. at the V.F.W. Hall on South Main Street. This clinic is for persons age 60 and over. Admission is one dollar. Call the Board of Health office (865-4721) to pre-register, Monday through Friday, from 9:00 a.m. to noon only. Persons with allergies to egg products or who are ill and have a fever should not have a flu shot.

Guest Preacher at First Church

MILLBURY - On Sunday, October 20, at the First Congregational Church, the Rev. John Summer, a UCC Chaplain from Fort Devens, will share his experiences from serving in the Gulf crisis. The Mission Committee has invited him in an attempt to better understand the situations of those around the world. The children of the Sunday School will sing before being dismissed to their classes.

The Mission Committee invites everyone to stay for a potluck brunch following the service. Beverages, rolls, butter, and dessert will be provided. They are asking participants to bring a dish to share and a place setting.

There will be a mini-mission fair set up in the fellowship room so people may become familiar with the work of the committee, the Worcester Area Missionary Society, the United Church of Christ, and other mission opportunities in the area.

Earlier this year, an offering was taken for the Olive Branch Campaign. It was given to Church World Services as they coordinated the relief efforts for the displaced Kurdish population in Iraq.

Following the brunch, Rev. Summer, Hunter Greenwood, and Rev. Jane Haley will be attending the annual meeting of the Central Association at the First Congregational Church in Worcester. The preacher at the evening worship will be the Rev. Bennie Whiten, minister and president of the Massachusetts Conference.

Ethics Committee 'punished' him with a Letter of Reproval, the least serious judgement possible, save for complete vindication. Bates' constituents, however, took his actions more seriously. In 1990, in a heavily Democratic district, he lost to a Republican.

In order not to embarrass his colleagues, old Speaker Sam Rayburn established the practice of letting members overdraw on their House bank accounts. Foley decries the practice one day, but a few days later is found to have been himself a check-kiter. Which of us has such a good banking relationship, can use the 'float' at will, and can sign chits and not pay up?

Congress, over the years, has continually and consistently exempted itself from the very laws they passed, laws designed to correct or protect, limit or define. According to Senator Charles Grassley, quoted in the Wall Street Journal, Congress has exempted itself from the Social Security Act, the Labor Relations Act, the Minimum Wage Act, the Equal Pay Act, the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1988, the Freedom of Information Act, the Age Discrimination Act, the Occupational Safety and Health Act, the Equal Employment Opportunity Act, the Rehabilitation Act, the Privacy Act, the Age Discrimination Amendments of 1975, and the Ethics in Government Act of 1978. Repeat: The Ethics in Government Act of 1978! If there was no need for those laws, why were they enacted? If they were good laws, why should they not apply to the members of Congress? Their specious answers to these questions are now making news, finally.

The media will not let the Keating Five off the hook, and rightly so. These people, who admitted what they were doing was wrong and excused it "because every one of us does it," are today among those sitting in judgement of the ethics of others. And the so-called Ethics Committee that looked into their practices backed off because they themselves were guilty of the same practices. Senator John Kerry, in Worcester, was wrong when he blamed the S&L problems on the regulators. Congress was the culprit. Compounding misguided prior regulations, in 1980 CONGRESS raised the maximum insured deposit level to $100,000 for banks AND S&Ls, and changed the law to permit lowering the capital ratio to what proved to be a dangerous 3%. What followed is now costing each of us our share of $200 billion!

Listen to the demagogues accuse each other of demagogism, all the while referring to each other as "the gentleman from" or "my learned friend" or "my honorable colleague," and all the while sticking knives in each other, impugning each others motives, accusing each other of pork-barreling, and, on the next bill, taking exactly the position they previously deplored.

1990 saw the beginning of public awareness of the deficiencies and limitations of those elected to office. The public is at a disadvantage because newspapers, suffering from a loss of advertising and from electronic competition, no longer devote adequate space to keep the people informed. Even the Globe, the New York Times and the Washington Post have been forced to cut back. We must hope that the shockers and the scandals, the hearings and the debates will continue to be news so that more of the public will respond with rage.

Limited Term laws are in effect in Oklahoma, Colorado and California. On October 10 the California Supreme Court upheld the law, saying there was nothing unconstitutional about "protecting against an entrenched, dynastic legislative bureaucracy." That's what we have in Washington and in Boston, and only we can do something about it.

Yes, our legislators are human, but we have a need to expect more of them than they have delivered. Unless we get more, our future as a nation is in peril.

think, the heck with the company, they make a lot of money anyway, and it doesn't concern them. Well it does concern everybody," he said. "The first possible effect on an honest customer is that their signal is degraded, their picture quality. Because the hot boxes often contain inferior components, it can distort the signal all around, to all the people feeding off of the same line, the same pole; it can affect the whole neighborhood; it can mess up honest people's reception."

According to DiCicco, there are as many as 700 people in Millbury who, in one way or another, are stealing their signals. The theft is often uncovered by a service technician making a call. When this happens, the homeowner is asked if he wants to turn in the box and open an account. "Most people, when you catch them dead to rights, will open an account," Goldstein said. "Most householders will get nervous. We'd rather have someone regularize their account. We'd rather have them honest for the future and get what they're supposed to get. Someone who's been stealing every channel and gives us a tough time and gives every sign that when we leave they're going to do it again; we'll go after whatever we can get."

As far as new technology to detect theft, there are a number of things in the works, including the "silver bullet, a much more thorough way than ever before, through the lines themselves, to find draws off the line electronically. "When this silver bullet passes through," Goldstein said, "the whole thing is deprogrammed, and it can't be reprogrammed."

Another anti-theft measure is called "Interdiction," which would in essence make the converter box obsolete. All the controls over what the subscriber gets would be done in a component on the poles. "That will be a real setback for thieves," Goldstein said.

Not surprising in this technological age, there are already companies working on devices to try and sidestep the new technology. "This is electronic warfare," Goldstein said. "This is like America and Russia in the cold war. Whatever we develop, they'll develop a counter measure. But what's happening right now, we know what's coming down the pike right now will catch the thieves here. Over the next 60-90 days, our company is going to be stepping up anti-theft efforts. We will be introducing some new measures."

At what point would the cable company seek legal action? "We prefer, with householders, not to," Goldstein said. "If they'll own up to it when confronted and open a legitimate account, unless it's someone who has been stealing an awful lot and gives us a very hard time, and clearly is going to it again. We'll shut them off and decline to give them service."

Goldstein said Greater Media is more likely to call the police when the theft is commercial. "It's usually liquor establishments who will do any of the combination of things I said, to be able to offer sports or pay per view events at the bar. They want to be able to offer it to their patrons and not pay for it. The reason police are much more likely to act," he said, "is because, not only is it double theft, people are making money off of this now; it's not just that you're not paying us for it, now you're enhancing your own business and making money from this theft. That's a lot more serious."

Goldstein cited a recent case involving the Anchor Lounge on Wheelock Avenue. "Ronald Prunier (owner) was taking a paid service," he said, "illegally modifying his box, and offering it to the customers. The police confiscated it, and he pled guilty in Worcester Distract Court. He was ordered to pay $250 restitution to us, a $50 fine to the court, and he received a six month suspended sentence."

DiCicco said judges are now giving penalties and suspended sentences where before, they just slapped offenders on the wrist. "Who knows," he said, "a year or two down the road, it may be jail terms. It's like drugs - you've got your manufacturers, your pushers, and your users. Your users are the most innocent people, in a way, because they're just victims in some cases. I'd rather see the guy who's pushing the illegal box get the jail term. They're the ones that are selling illegal boxes, making illegal boxes, making equipment that could steal signals; these are the people that should be punished more severely. The guy who puts a matchbook in his box to steal HBO, he's wrong, but he shouldn't go to jail; he should be educated," he said.

"With the war, CNN, everybody is more aware of cable today," Goldstein added. "The more people are aware, the more the police and political people are willing to admit and agree that the industry has a legitimate concern."

Both Goldstein and DiCicco urged the public to "come clean" if they engage in any theft of cable service. "Things are coming," Goldstein said. "Time is not on the thieves' side. If you are going to come clean, do it sooner. You'll be doing yourself a favor. Just call our office and let us know."

Watch out, the silver bullet may be coming to your house....

Tax Rate Up 3 1/2% in Sutton

By Lawrence Moore

SUTTON - The Selectmen's Workshop meeting of October 8 was called to order by Chair David Strieby. Present were Selectmen Wally Johnson, Mike Chizy, Mary K. Connor and Rick LaBonte, and Town Administrator Dexter Blois.

Correspondence

Strieby referred to a letter from Evan Smith, Commissioner of Town Administration and Finance, offering the town a five acre parcel of land near 146, south of Mendon Road. It is adjacent to the Edgerton property on the East side of 146. The parcel is land-locked, a remainder from the taking of land prior to the building of 146. Since the land must be accepted for public use and cannot be resold, and since there is no access to it, more information and better maps were requested so the Board can evaluate the offer. If eventually it should be purchased privately, it could become taxable property.

A preliminary suggested precinct realignment map is in the Clerk's office. Strieby suggested the Board examine the proposal and be prepared to offer comments.

Sutton Square Parking

Blois referred to a change in the article adopting fines for "Handicapped Parking" violations. It will be set up as a by-law, not as a parking regulation, and the penalty may be from $25 to $100; violators may also be towed. Blois suggested the fine be $50 to which Chizy commented, "Beautiful...my thoughts exactly."

LaBonte recommended a fine of $100, but there was no second. "I'm the guy that's pushing it," Chizy said, "but let's see the $50 first. If that doesn't smarten people up, then I'll be glad to make it $100."

Johnson questioned restricted parking in the rear of Sutton Square. Blois replied that the Fire Chief had delineated an 8 foot restricted area at each door.

Connor and Chizy criticized the alignment of parking spaces and traffic lanes, but, since Sutton Square is private property, no action was suggested.

The proposed date for the relocation of the Post Office to Sutton Square is October 16, but, as Blois said, there have been several other dates planned and passed. Comments from members indicated that there seems to be a variation in rates for Post Office boxes. A volunteer will ask the Postmaster about rates.

Skyeline Drive

Blois reported that Ray Smith, Dick Wharton and he have been working on drainage problems on Skyeline Drive. Solutions have been found for the Royce problem on Dodge Road, and action is planned to correct the detention pond. It was stated that part of the problem results from the use of the pond as a compost area.

Tax Classification

A public hearing on the tax classification continued from October 1 was reopened at 8 p.m. Rounded out, Sutton's total valuation is $521,800,000, of which Residential is $455,900,000, Commercial $34,200.000, Industrial $22,100,000 and Personal Property $9,600,000. Residential property totals 87.3719% of the town's value; Commercial, Industrial and Personal Property totals 12.6281%. Exempt property is valued at $821,482.

Maximum split tax rates would be: Residential $9.63, Others $15.57. With one rate for all classes, the tax rate would be $10.38. The current tax rate is $9.94, for an increase of 3 1/2%.

Assessor Pat Nedoroscik reported a total of 3952 parcels in Sutton: 3521 Residential, 90 Commercial, 89 Industrial, and 160 so-called Chapter parcels (farms etc.). There are 92 exempt parcels such as the schools, Town Hall and other town property.

The vote was 4 in favor of a single tax rate, with Connor abstaining.

The final figures are based on the assumption that the Department of Revenue will approve the New Growth figures proposed by Nedoroscik.

Resident Carl Hutchinson asked if Nedoroscik could explain how the tax rate could go up more that 2 1/2%.

She replied that people are under the misconception that when 2 1/2 was passed it meant the tax rate could not increase by more than 2 1/2%, "and that's not the truth," she said. To calculate the amount of money that can be raised in taxes, Nedoroscik said, "We take our last year's levy limit, subtract the amount that was overrides and exclusions to Proposition 2 1/2, and that's the adjusted levy. Then we take 2 1/2% of that and add that to our levy. You then add back the overrides and exclusions and add New Growth."

These calculations result in a Fiscal 1992 levy limit of $5,416,584. Using the levy limit and total value amounts, the tax rate is established.

Blois explained further: "The 2 1/2% has no bearing on the tax rate itself. It has a bearing on the fact that the tax rate cannot exceed $25 per $1,000." New growth, changes in valuation, exemptions or abatements may change the tax rate and the amount any one taxpayer may pay.

The Assessors will now submit the figures to the Department of Revenue for approval so the tax bills can be mailed before the end of October.

Kid's Country Insurance

Connor reported that in discussions with the School Committee, Kid's Country representatives have asked the School to cover liability insurance during construction since they found that the coverage would cost about $1,000. The School Committee was unwilling to accept that responsibility.

"They want to know if we (the town) can get a rider that they can either buy through us or that we can extend to this volunteer group that has no connection to anyone," Connor said.

Blois said he would find out.

"These questions came up three years ago," Connor said, "but the School Committee agreed to go ahead, and now everybody is upset."

Strieby commented on the disrepair of the Grafton playground and asked, "Who's going to fix this one in five years?"

Connor asked how many playgrounds similar to the recently erected one at Veterans Field could be put around the town for the cost of Kid's Country.

"We could put three of them around town for $20,000," LaBonte replied. "Excluding the basketball post we spent roughly $5,000." Johnson brought up the question of the advisability of using pressure treated lumber. He said he had heard, "For some things, it's outlawed in New Hampshire."

Questions also arose over who would be responsible for maintaining Kid's Country. Estimates for maintenance costs ranged from $500 to $5,000 a year.

Blois said he would talk with Mark DiStefano of Kid's Country and Superintendent Gordon Spence about the questions that had been raised.

The meeting adjourned at 8:55.

We are pleased to announce that the Millbury Public Library has received a gift of a three-tape video collection about the problems of aging. These tapes are now available for circulation, free of charge. In addition, the library's portable VCR unit is available for loan to community groups and organizations.

This three tape video collection was given to the library as a gift from the Chicago-area Retirement Research Foundation. Titles in the collection are: The Mind: Aging (a program from the nine part PBS Series); Alzheimer's Disease: You Are Not Alone; and Final Choices, a program about the complex problems brought on by the availability of life-prolonging medical technology.

"The Retirement Research Foundation Video Collection reflects our special commitment to the use of media to further our primary goal at the Foundation, that of seeking to improve the quality of life for older people throughout the United States," according to Joe Parkin, President of the Foundation. Since 1985, the Retirement Research has conducted a National Media Owl Awards program seeking to identify and reward outstanding films, videotapes and television programs about aging. Each of the tapes in the video collection has received the Foundation's National Media Owl Award.

The Retirement Research Foundation Video Collection is dedicated to the memory of the late Chicago-based attorney, William T. Kirby (1911-1990), an Early Board Member at the Foundation, who conceived the project and arranged to have the Foundation make this collection available to more than 2,100 public libraries nationwide, prior to his death in October.

The Mind: Aging (58 minutes) - One segment of the PBS series on the Mind, this video examines the phenomenon of aging and its effect on the mind. The science of gerontology suggests an excellent potential for the aged, as researchers now view the diseases associated with aging - strokes, Alzheimer's - as not the normal consequences of aging. The program makes the point that aging is not synonymous with disease and that there is a vast heterogeneity among the elders.

Alzheimer's Disease: You Are Not Alone (28 minutes) - This program addresses what can be done to assist the Alzheimer's disease victim and his or her family. Case examples ranging from severely impaired to recently diagnosed patients present avenues of help, without minimizing the severity of the disease.

Final Choices (27 minutes) - Final Choices explores the profound moral and legal dilemmas that modern life-saving technology has created for physicians, nurses, patients and families.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

BOSTON - This week's "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records the votes of Senator Matthew Amorello (R-Grafton) and Representatives Richard Moore (D-Uxbridge) and Paul Kollios (D-Millbury) on roll calls from the week of October 7-11.

THE HOUSE

GENERAL RELIEF (H6164) - House 102-47 gave initial approval to the bill abolishing the current General Relief (GR) program and replacing it with one designed to provide emergency aid for the elderly and disabled. The new program eliminates payments to up to 10,000 of the 38,000 people who now receive aid, including those over 45 with no work history and undocumented aliens. The measure also caps spending at $163.8 million for the current fiscal year and gives Weld power to change benefits if spending exceeds that cap. Supporters said the program will still help many elderly and disabled while insuring that spending is kept under control. Opponents said the cuts will hurt thousands of people and will result in overcrowded shelters and increased crime. Moore voted for the bill replacing the current GR program. Kollios voted against the bill.

RESIDENCY REQUIREMENT (H 6164) - House 89-53 approved an amendment prohibiting benefits from going to anyone who has been a Massachusetts resident for less than 90 days. Amendment supporters said this will save money and prohibit people from moving to the state just to receive relief benefits. Opponents said the requirement may be unconstitutional and runs counter to the right of interstate travel. Moore and Kollios voted for the residency requirement.

STUDENTS (H 6164) - House 95-55, rejected an amendment striking the section providing benefits to persons under 21 who are emancipated from their parents and attending high schools or vocational schools. Amendment supporters said the benefits should only go to people in dire need, and argued the state should not subsidize young people who decide not to live with their parents. Opponents said these young people should receive the $250 and maintained that many are orphans, refugees or abused children from broken homes. Moore voted against giving the benefits to those under 21. Kollios voted to give the benefits.

HOME CONTRACTORS (H 6071) - House 128-13, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate a bill regulating home improvement contractors. The bill requires all contractors to register with the state and requires a written contract for work in excess of $500. Other provisions include allowing consumers to sue for up to $20,000 in small claims court and establishing a guarantee fund, financed by contractors by up to a $500 fee, to provide money for consumers whose contractors fail to pay a judgement. Supporters, noting the bill also prohibits contractors from acting as mortgage brokers or agents for mortgage lenders, said the bill will protect consumers from the handful of unreputable contractors. Opponents said the bill goes too far and overregulates the industry. They said the new requirement will increase costs to consumers. Moore and Kollios voted for the bill.

THE SENATE

GENERAL RELIEF (H5800) - the Senate 19-16, failed to override Governor Weld's veto reduction from $94.8 million to $21.5 million for the existing General Relief program. The Senate 19-15 also failed to override Weld's reduction from $21.3 million to $5.7 million for medical services to GR recipients. Upholding Weld's veto forced legislators and Weld to craft a new aid program which was approved by the Senate on a voice vote without a roll call. Override supporters said any reductions in or narrowing of eligibility will hurt thousands of people and will end up costing more in increased crime and more shelters. Veto supporters said the veto reductions were designed to fund the existing benefits for a few weeks in order to force agreements on some kind of proposal to limit aid to the truly needy elderly and disabled. Amorello voted for the $94.8 million on the first roll call, and for the $21.3 million on the second roll call.

LATE SESSION - Senate 20-15, suspended rules to allow the Senate to remain in session beyond 8 p.m. Supporters said the Senate has important work to finish. Opponents said this rule is suspended far too often and allows the Senate to act while the voters are not watching. Amorello voted for adjourning.

CAUCUS - Senate 20-15 refused to suspend rules to allow consideration of a proposed rule change prohibiting Senate business from being conducted in the chamber when there is a caucus of either party being held elsewhere. Supporters said it is undemocratic and unfair of the Senate President to conduct business while the minority party is meeting elsewhere. Opponents said the Senate President has never done this, and argued the proposal should be studied. Amorello voted for rule suspension to allow consideration of the rule change.
